

New day 9:00

October 15

There is a a very big difference coming here in the morning on a weekend

Everyone wants to sit down, there's more pressure to drop and go

A lot of older people sitting down in the corner by the ordering side 6

2 mac students by the dna wall one of color both female

Kid with dad just in front of them

Im sitting next to the stop by the stage

There is a couple older ladies ordering coffee grounds, perhaps restocking for the week

Older group of 3 sitting in the middle having hot coffee and discussing events while holding newspapers

9:20

There is a large demographic of older white people just having conversations with hot coffee

Two men of color in line ordering and more mac students

The students are white visibly showing sweaters or mac athletic backpacks

There has been a lot of rearranging of chairs that I have not noticed happen before today

There is an older white man doing crossword puzzles on the stage

Three friends next to him talking all seem white

The man next to me is writing in a journal and pondering very carefully almost makes me think he himself is observing the coffee shop as well, perhaps writing a book?

The people next to me whom I thought were white are speaking Spanish, perhaps bilingual or just practicing?

There's some more mac students that came in, two white one asian

Older veterans came in canes w their hats on

Econ dude came in with a friend today he has a book but no laptop today, I assume it's like a rest day for him; hes chilling with a friend instead of doing homework

He is showing his friend quotes of a book that he is reading and discussing it

9:45

A black women with a white women come in to order, seem like very good friends as they are hugging at the entrance of the coffee shop

Most people have left in the hour that i have been here, only the older people have stayed

There are new pairs or people that have come in to sit down

White male was waiting for a white friend who came in and ordered they immediately started catching up about work

Asian pair or friends walked in and are enjoying some pastries with coffee, it seems like its their first time here as they are looking at the dna wall and show skepticism in regards to the pastries

There is a large line now with mostly white haired men prepared to order

In this observation many of the individuals in the coffee shop had very relaxing postures as they were there to stay a while. You could see the disappointment of the other individuals who wanted to take a seat and chat with their own companions but were not able to due to the insufficient seats. The demographic of the coffee shop keeps being that of an older crowd, there are young people but they are very outnumbered by the amount of people that are in their early thirties and much older folks.